Comment_description: My husband and I recently purchased property in Lakefork next to the easement on which you are considering installing power lines. I read in the paper that you are inviting people to make comments about this issue. Of course, since it is next to where I plan on builing a house, I would prefer underground power lines as opposed to poles. It would be more in keeping with the immediate area since my neighborhood has underground utilities. As well, I believe there might be fewer power outages because of the heavy snowfall and possibilities of having powerlines go down. It may be more expensive initially, but in the end it could be more cost efficient.
