Comment_description: Our utility companies look for any reason in the world to raise our rates. They want to blame the predicted rise in rates next year on Hurricane Katrina. I'm sure the nasty witch of the South will be the brunt of the blame for a lot of things. But it's getting ridiculous. Maybe the next reason Avista will want a rate hike will be because the full moon fell on the 3rd Tuesday of February of a leap year. The bottom line is they need more money to pay their big staff big time bucks, especially the white collared. They must think their half-million a year salaries (or more) is getting very difficult to live on! I know several people who work for Avista and they all laugh when payday comes 'round, knowing they can continue to drive their big gas guzzling SUVs fifty miles to work from their exotic backwood mansions. Please say no and support us hard working, paycheck-to-paycheck Idahoans who make up the majority of this state and whom you work for.
