Please describe your comment briefly:

In your public notice you state ' At the end of the calendar year, any unused kilowatt-hour credits are granted to the company without compensation to the customer-generator.'

I would ask that the Commission change how Avista compensates for unused KW credits to reflect the same standard imposed on other power companies in the State. Any excess power generated should be purchased by Avista at the prevailing wholesale rate. Please consider making the standard the same for the entire state and not continue to grant Avista special privileges over Idaho Power Company and others.

Thank you,

Michael Schlepp

Avista Utilites should not be allowed to keep unused credits given to customers who generate their own electricity. Avista has reported record profits to its shareholders and have granted million dollar bonuses to its executives. There is no reason why homeowners who generate some of their own electricity, that generate MORE than they need, should not be compensated regardless! Small bussiness and families, have seen record increases this year, even though temeratures this winter were at record highs. Utility bills have increased this year over last year.. There is no reason for it!
