Comment_description: While I am in favor of implementing technologies that increase efficiency, I also know that sometimes new technologies need time to become cost effective before they should be implemented. Idaho Power has stated that Automatic Meter Readers would cost more in the first 6 years, but that they expect costs to drop as the technology becomes more familiar. Rather than requiring Idaho Power to implement the technology now, how about requiring them to follow the technology and put together a 3 or 5 year plan for implementing it?
