I'm pleased to see an increased interest in geothermal power in Idaho. A higher rate for renewable energy sources should be expected by consumers and their response should be increased conservation and an interest in energy-saving practices on their own part. I urge you to approve the request from Idaho Power to use the power cost adjustment to buy geothermal.

On another matter: since our legislature didn't address any state-wide power plant siting issues, is there anything the PUC can do to regulate where new power plants are sited (especially the merchant plants --- Idaho quality of life paying for California hot tubs)? We thought the public was short-changed here in Jerome County when Semptra only had to approach three county commissioners for approval. Now merchant nuclear companies are taking advantage of the same lax regulations in the Treasure Valley. How can this be?!

Thank you for your assistance.

I support Idaho Power's desire to buy electricity generated by the U.S. Geothermal plant near Malta. The more geothermal, the better off Idaho will be.
