The current state of the economy is a burden on everyone. Idaho Power Co. retired employees's pension plan should be subject to market conditions as is the case with most retirement pension plans. If the IPC pension plan funding has decreased, due to market conditions, retirees pensions should reflect the decrease and they should be bearing the burden of that decrease just like all the rest of us retirees are forced to when there is a negative change in the economy. The rate payer should NOT be required to fund additional dollars to IPC, or any pension plan, whose bottom line has been adversely effected by investment decisions or conditions. In other words, I DO NOT desire to pay additional dollars to help fund an existitng pension plan when perhaps belt tightening by the existitng pensioners would be more appropriate. They should share in the economic downturn just like everyone else is expected to.

The market has been doing very well for diversified portfolios. Something is wrong with whoever the broker is. All three arguments for rate increases has a very bad odor especially at the same time as a rate decrease.

Please describe your comment briefly:

I have a couple of problems with the proposed Idaho Power rates. I am against the utility getting a rate increase for energy efficiency. We try and conserve energy doing all we can to cut our bill and then we get charged on our bill for energy efficiency programs and then because we reduce the use we get charged more per kw so they can recieve more money. That is just a circle with us geting it from both sides.
Now I am against smart meetering so someone can turn off my meter when they want to. I also think that a service charge for meter reading should be eliminated when the smart meters are installed. No one comes around to read the meter anymore so the fee should be eliminated.
Now as to the Pension funding. No one pays my pension fund I have to do that by myself. That should come out of their paychecks just like mine does and being self employed I only get retirement funds after all the other bills are paid and there is some left over. We each need to be responsible for our own welfare.
Our power bill seems to be going up all of the time with no end in sight I think it is time to put a halt on this. Thank You.
