Comment: I fully support solar power and believe that creating/defining a different rate class for those that generate it is appropriate so as to determine what effect it has on the rates of those who do not.

Those who cannot afford to generate power should not be penalized for those that can.

I do not believe that any power company would be against solar generation, but it should not penalize the every day user. I would be disappointed if the power companies didn't figure out a way to make it equitable or more balanced for all.
