Comment_description: Intermountain Gas Rates Increase Comment

I do not agree with your proposal for a rate increase based on the rising costs of natural gas alone. If the rate increase could be put towards alternative fuel alternatives such as wind power then I give my consent.

Thankyou for reading my comment.

Sincerely, Randy Anderson

Comment_description: How can we as the general payers of utilities continue to pay for exorbitant increases of 10% or more, when our income doesn't even keep up. Where does this utility come from? China? How can we pay for this constant increase? I am against this because we will continually get screwed and no one cares.....

Comment_description: Intermountain Gas recently had a major increase in rates. Now the company is asking for more. This is difficult for people on fixed incomes or who hardly get salary increases to meet the increase in cost of living let alone heating costs that keep going up. It would be better to process Intermountain's annual applications for rate adjustments closer to the winter heating season. Our family now lives in a small duplex, and the cost of gas last winter was more than we ever paid in a larger house out of state.
