Comment_description: Intermountain Gas is requesting approximately a 10percent increase in rates. I don't believe they should receive any increase at this time. Here is some actual data that Intermountain Gas for Cy 2004 had a 36 percent increase over last year:
March 2003 bill I received was $102.96 for 174 therms and this
Feb. 2004 bill was $140.50 for 174 therms.

Sincerely, Gil Thorsen

Comment_description: I do not believe the gas co. needs at 10% rate increase. If any rate increases at all, it should be no more than the established inflation rate per year, such as 3-5%.

If there seems to be a groundswell of requests that the applications be processed closer to the winter season, then I'll agree. Otherwise, I do not understand the difference of when a request is made.

Comment description: It is not fair to charge a greater percentage increase for a homeowner with a gas water heater and heating than one with only heating. Do they want us all to take out our gas water heaters and put in electric?
