Comment description: I realize this comment is late. It got lost in my shuffle. Perhaps you will consider the points in question, despite their tardiness.

1 The stated water system assets in regard to inclusion of engineering costs that are not yet part of current operations e.g. planned future projects.

2 Details and costs of improvements since 12/8/98 including the need for these improvements.

3 The need to offer an achievable 11% return on investment in order to attract investment capital in this current setting of low interest rates, diminished corporate earnings, and renewed public interest in dividends.

4 The validity of the stated yearly operating and maintenance expenses.

5 The methodology for calculating individual unit consumption (not all ERUs are comparable e.g. our condominium's metered consumption over 21 yrs is approx. 1/3 of the estimated gallonage assigned to it)

6 Consideration of rate comparison between Resort Water's request and the nearly identical immediately adjacent residential water company.

Thanks for your consideration.

Frank B Kimball
